Introductory.

IN presenting a new Prices Current to our friends and patrons, we desire to call attention to the fact that for the last six or eight years we have made gradual reductions in the prices of our goods whenever increased facilities for manufacture or the reduced cost of the crude material permitted. At the present time we are enabled to announce still further reductions in the price of many of the articles furnished by us.

Mother Tinctures. In the preparation of our Mother Tinctures, we conscientiously make use of none but fresh green plants, for the proper collection of which we have unusual facilities. As early as 1853 we commenced to gather such indigenous medicinal plants as were then in use, and as the number increased and especially after Hale's "New Remedies" had appeared, these botanical excursions grew more extended, until to-day we are well acquainted with the habitat of all of the indigenous plants in use in Homœopathy, and collect most of them ourselves within a radius of less than twenty miles from Philadelphia. Plants indigenous to the West we procure through our branch in Chicago; those of the South, through our branch in New Orleans; while plants growing on the Pacific Coast, the Sandwich Islands, etc., are furnished by our branch at San Francisco. Thus saturated tinctures made from fresh plants, gathered when in full vigor, may at all times be relied upon.

European Homœopathic Tinctures we import from the best known sources, i. e. from reputable Homœopathic Pharmacies.

The only exceptions to above rule are tinctures from plants growing in distant countries, as Nux vom., Rheum, Ignatia, etc., which of necessity are made from carefully selected dry material.

Triturations. Our Triturations are made with Pure Sugar of Milk in steam triturators with the latest improvements. Having ample facilities, we are enabled to accord to each trituration fully two hours, whereby an unusual degree of excellence is obtained. Remedies such as Sepia, Mercurius v., Graphites, are triturated four hours or longer, until the desired grade of comminution is secured.

High Triturations. Years ago we ordered, as an experiment, 30th triturations of half a dozen remedies from Gruner's old pharmacy in Dresden and as they sold well and gave good satisfaction, we concluded to make high triturations of our own, and have now in stock over fifty remedies in the 30th and 60th decimal trituration, as per list on page 17. Additions are made from time to time as required.

Dilutions. Our Dilutions are all conscientiously made by hand. We commenced by running up one hundred remedies to the 30th, retaining all intermediate attenuations and using a separate box for each remedy. Gradually the list has increased until to-day we carry in stock over seven hundred remedies, and are able to supply any of them like the 12th, 15th, 24th, etc., as readily as the 3d or 6th. Each of our eight pharmacies carries a similar set in stock, and our patrons thus have absolute surety of obtaining any intermediate potency called for.

High Potencies. Finding that our 30th gave good satisfaction to physicians, we concluded to make in like manner High Potencies, that is, prepare them by hand, with pure alcohol, giving each potency twelve powerful strokes. We have thus carried up over 250 remedies to the 200th, 150 to the 500th and 100 to the 1000th potency, retaining only a few of the intermediate potencies as the 60th, 100th and 150th.

Alcohol so largely used in Homœopathic Preparations, we take great pains to obtain in the utmost purity. We keep only one quality in stock, and this is used alike for the tinctures as well as for potencies.

Our Sugar of Milk. Chemical tests made to examine into the purity of our Sugar of Milk, have proved it to be "quite pure and free from all deleterious substances." (See Hahnemannian Monthly, pp. 185, March, 1879).

Pure Sugar Pellets for many years were made solely by confectioners. We make ours on our own premises from the purest sugar obtainable, for thus only can absolute surety of their freedom from foreign substances be attained. For many years we have manufactured all pellets sold in our pharmacies, and we are able to guarantee their absolute purity, while in price they are not higher than those made by confectioners.

Our Distilled Water is prepared in a copper still, heavily lined with gold, and is furnished in glass stoppered bottles; thus it can be kept for a year or longer without change.

Our Pharmacies. Physicians' supplies are prepared at our laboratory and manufactory in Philadelphia, which is presided over personally by a member of the firm. By thus concentrating the manifold manipulations, many advantages are secured. From there they are distributed, as wanted, to our several establishments, and thus preparations of our well-known standard quality can be obtained at all times alike at any of our branches.

The Superintendents of our branch Pharmacies relieved of the laborious manipulations incident to the preparation of medicines, are able to devote their whole attention to the filling of our patron's orders, which rarely are on their hands for over twenty-four hours.

In conclusion, we beg to assure the profession that, as it has ever been our endeavor to excel in the quality of our preparations, we never spare pains or expense in procuring the very best of everything in our line; that while furnishing our medicines at a moderate advance on cost, we do not intend to compete with establishments whose sole claims lie in cheap prices. Our endeavors have met with hearty acknowledgement by the profession, and the generous support accorded to our establishments, bears witness of our ability to give satisfaction to our many patrons.

BOERICKE & TAFEL.

HINTS FOR ORDERING GOODS.

In ordering medicines please specify carefully what attenuation you desire, and also the forms in which they are required, whether Mother Tinctures, Triturations, Liquid Dilutions, or Medicated Pellets; also, whether you wish them prepared according to the decimal or centesimal scale, as both are kept on hand. Preparations according to the decimal scale, are distinguished from the centesimal by an "X" appended to the number of the attenuation.

Do not depend upon our remembrance of some previous order. State how you wish your goods forwarded,—by mail, express, or otherwise.

Write the name of your town, county, or state, and your own name distinctly.

If an article not enumerated in the Catalogue is desired, be particular to give a full description, and if possible the price, when there is a choice of qualities or styles.

Goods sent by mail, except such articles as are advertised free, will be charged with the postage, which must accompany the remittance.

Goods ordered to be sent by express, C. O. D. (cash on delivery), will be charged with expense of collection on all bills under five dollars.

Remittances may be made by postal order and checks, by bankers' drafts, by registered letter or by express.

All goods are carefully packed, and can be transported safely, with careful handling, to any part of the country. They become the property of the purchaser when they leave the store; therefore for all delays or damages he must look to the transporters of the goods, who alone are legally responsible to their owner for their prompt and safe delivery.

Goods are not insured except by request, and then always at the expense of the purchaser.

Should there be any misunderstanding on our part in putting up an order, it will afford us pleasure to correct it, on receiving prompt notice of the same, as it is our desire to give entire satisfaction in every transaction.

Attention to the foregoing hints, will enable us to fill all orders, large or small, as satisfactorily to the purchaser as though he were personally present.

OUR SUPPLEMENTARY TINCTURE LABELS.

(For specimens, see below.)

In view of the fact that there is no authorized and representative American Homœopathic Pharmacopæia as yet, and the preparation of dilutions by physicians would not be uniform unless the strength of the Mother Tincture be known, we have believed that the profession will receive with favor these labels, as they indicate the strength of the tinctures prepared according to the Pharmacopæia Homœopathica Polyglottica, according to which our preparations for years have been prepared. It will be noticed that our tinctures from American plants are almost uniformly made according to class III of the Pharmacopæia.

This Tincture is prepared according to CLASS I. One part of the expressed juice of the plant to one part of Alcohol.

This Tincture is prepared according to CLASS II. Three parts of the fresh plant to two parts of Alcohol, by weight.

This Tincture is prepared according to CLASS III. One part of the fresh plant to two parts of Alcohol, by weight.

This Tincture is prepared according to CLASS IV. One part of the dried material to five parts of Alcohol, by weight.

SHORT DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING DILUTIONS.

To make dilutions in accordance with the rule that the potency should contain always just the 100th part of the soluble components of the drug, or of the previous potency, take for the first centesimal potency:

2 drops of the Mother Tincture to 98 of dilute Alcohol of all those tinctures prepared according to class I.
3 drops of the Tincture to 97 of dilute Alcohol of all marked II.
6 " " 94 strong " " III.
10 " " 90 " " " IV.

To make the second centesimal dilution or any subsequent one, take in the proportion of 1 to 99.

For other details see Dr. Boericke's lectures on Pharmaceutics, which will be furnished by us gratis on application.

WHITE FLINT GLASS VIALS FOR MEDICINES.

In 1873 we introduced amber-colored vials for homœopathic medicines into this country, and soon after they were generally adopted by Homœopathic Pharmacies and by many Druggists. However, as scientists demonstrated by late researches, that amber-colored glass does not possess the advantages which we, with others, were led to believe, we discarded it and resumed the use of white flint glass vials, and for medicines affected by light we shall use vials covered with impervious material.

White flint glass vials have also the decided advantage of facilitating the examination of preparations, impurities in dilutions, tinctures or triturations being thus more readily discerned.

Unless therefore amber vials be specially ordered, we shall hereafter use white vials in filling physicians orders.

HIGH TRITURATIONS.

These are prepared on the decimal scale; we have now on hand fifty-seven remedies in the 30th and 60th decimal trituration, which we sell the same as other triturations, as per prices on page 7.

EUGENIE; or, Ladies' Companion.

Price, $1.50 (postage 5 cents each). Per doz..... 16 00

How to Use the Eugenie.—Without buckles or buttons it is slipped on over the feet. The short stays connecting the belt and sack (when the bandage is on), come in front and cover the groin, the foot is passed in between the sack and belt, and between the long and short stays on each side. The elasticity of every part of the Eugenie is thus brought into play, so that the belt comes above the pelvis, and the points of the hips come between the stays on either side.

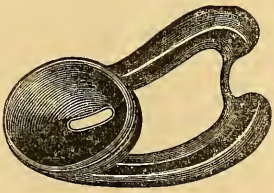
FRASER'S RETAINING APPARATUS, for Dislocation of the Uterus, or Prolapsus Uteri.

Price, to patients, $5.00, to physicians..... 4 00



It is so perfectly adapted to the parts that the lady is not aware of its pressure, except by a feeling of perfect ease and comfort. There is no outside tackle to become displaced, to chafe and make sore, but all is concealed within the pelvic cavity, without a possibility of its becoming displaced. It is clean and neat, and allows all uterine and vaginal secretions to pass away readily, with no necessity for its removal. The lady can, however, easily remove and replace it herself if she should so desire. Ordinary cases, by the use of this supporter, and proper treatment, are usually cured in from three to six weeks, so that the instrument can then be dispensed with.

Measure of Globules.—The number given to any size of Globules is determined by laying ten of equal size side by side, and the number of millimetres they measure is taken as the number for the particular size of Globules thus measured. For example: Ten of the Globules formerly called No. 4 measure about 30 millimetres, and so will be called No. 30. We give an exact copy of the Scale of Millimetres.

HIGBEE'S THUMB AND FINGER SPECULUM.

Single $6, any two sizes	10 00
A set of No. 1, 2 and 3	15 00

A great improvement over Sims' Cylinder or Bivalve.

☞In using the speculum pass the lower blade under the cervix. Keep it well pressed into the cul-de-sac while opening. Open widely, thus dilating to its fullest extent, the upper portion of the vagina.

1st. Requires no assistant. 2d. Patient may be examined on the back or side equally well. 3d. The upper blade clears the cervix, and is greatly depressed at h (Fig. 1), so that the distance from c d (Fig. 2), may be $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches, and the distance a b be but $1\frac{1}{4}$ inches. 4th. The flange e is the stop and stay of the speculum, and when dilated the cervix is drawn toward the speculum; the flange at the same time admits all the light. 5th. It is self-retaining. The vaginal walls cannot fall in at the sides, as with the ordinary bivalve, because the speculum may be opened indefinitely within the vagina without stretching the external parts. 6th. It keeps the uterus at such an angle that, in every case, it can be probed to the fundus. The cervix is automatically drawn forward towards the vulva. 7th. This speculum is made in sets—Nos. 1, 2, and 3 telescoping one into the other, so that they take little more room than one when slipped into each other. In addition, a size No. 3, extra large, No. 2, extra long and a No. 0, extra small, for special cases, may be had.

LEGUMINOSE. Nos. I, II, III, IV. Per Pound 75

Composed of Leguminous (Lentils and Peas) and Cereal Flours, in a state of finest comminution, and in different proportions of Nitrogenous to Non-nitrogenous substances.

LEGUMINOSE, in its four several and distinct mixtures of nitrogenous to non-nitrogenous substances, meets all wants.

MIXTURE I, with a proportion of the nitrogenous to the non-nitrogenous substances = 1 : 2, 3, is, as a nutriment, almost equivalent to beef, and is usually prescribed in the treatment of fevers, especially of typhoid fever, in phthisis pulmonalis, in general marasmus of children, chlorosis, etc.

MIXTURE II, with a proportion = 1 : 3, 3, ranks as a nutriment with cow's milk, and is especially suitable in chronic troubles of the stomach, in cancer of the stomach, ulcer of the stomach, liability to diarrhœa, to phthisic patients free from fever, etc., etc.

MIXTURE III, with a proportion = 1 : 3, 9, is nearly equal to mother's milk in its nutritive value, and is especially beneficial to babies in place of mother's milk (from the second month), and equally applicable to healthy infants as to those afflicted with diarrhœa. This mixture, No. III, is the great article of food in SUMMER COMPLAINT, and will be found to be simply indispensable as soon as a fair trial has once been given.

MIXTURE IV has a proportion = 1 : 4, 8, being the same as under ordinary circumstances healthy grown people require, and is applicable in all cases not mentioned above where a very nutritious diet is wanted, specially easy of digestion, but where a preponderance of nitrogenous substances is not necessary. Thus, in all light affections of the stomach and intestines, in insane asylums, in cases of refusal of food by the sick, in hospitals with convalescents, aboard ship, etc., etc.

A large tablespoonful is sufficient for one plate of soup. Full directions accompany each package.

LEGUMINOSE has been introduced in the Government Hospitals in Germany, and its use is spreading rapidly in private families.

Pamphlets giving full particulars furnished on application.

MEASURE OF VIALS.

In the size of vials the DIAMETER is given first, then the LENGTH, and the whole read as one number—for example: a $\frac{1}{4}$ drachm vial would measure about 9 millemetres in diameter and 35 millemetres in length, and would be numbered 935; a drachm vial would measure about 14 millemetres in diameter and 45 millemetres in length, and would be numbered 1445.

ACONITE, Monograph on, its Therapeutic and Physiological Effects, together with its Uses and Accurate Statements, derived from the various Sources of Medical Literature. By A. Reil, M.D. Translated from the German by H. B. Millard, M.D. Prize essay. 168 pages, ... $0 60

"This Monograph, probably the best which has ever been published, upon the subject, has been translated and given to the public in English, by Dr. Millard, of New York. Apart from the intrinsic value of the work, which is well known to all medical German scholars, the translation of it has been completed in the most thorough and painstaking way; and all the Latin and Greek quotations have been carefully rendered into English.

"The book itself is a work of great merit, thoroughly exhausting the whole range of the subject. To obtain a thorough view of the spirit of the action of the drug, we can recommend no better work."—From the North American Journal.

ALLEN, DR. T. F. The Encyclopedia of Pure Materia Medica; a Record of the Positive Effects of Drugs upon the Healthy Human Organism. With contributions from Dr. Richard Hughes, of England; Dr. C. Hering, of Philadelphia; Dr. Carroll Dunham, of New York; Dr. Adolph Lippe, of Philadelphia, and others. X volumes. Price bound in cloth, $60.00; in half morocco or sheep, ... 70 00

This is the most complete and extensive work on Materia Medica ever attempted in the history of medicine—a work to which the homœopathic practitioner may turn with the certainty of finding the whole pathogenetic record of any remedy ever used in homœopathy, the record of which being published either in bookform or in journals. The volumes average about 640 pp. each. Nine volumes have been completed, and the concluding volume will be issued before end of 1879. An index or symptom register to the Encyclopedia will be issued within six months from completion of last volume.

ALLEN AND NORTON. Ophthalmic Therapeutics, by Timothy F. Allen, M.D., Surgeon to the New York Ophthalmic Hospital, Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics in the

New York Homœopathic Medical College, and Geo. S. Norton, M.D., Surgeon to the New York Ophthalmic Hospital, and Ophthalmic and Aural Surgeon to the Homœopathic Hospital on Ward's Island. 269 pp., 8vo. Cloth, ... 2 00

. . . "This work is a movement in the right direction, meets our unqualified endorsement, furnishing, as it unquestionably does, the most valuable and definite conclusions of clinical experience, based upon indications afforded by the provings of the remedies used. . . .

"Part I. goes over the ground from Aconite to Zincum, giving the subjective and clinical features of each drug. We are assured in the preface that 'all the symptomatology given in the work has been verified.'

"Part II. names each of the affections treated, together with the remedies that have been found serviceable, and to each remedy is appended the leading symptoms known to have been produced or cured, or at least ameliorated."—From Ohio M. & S. Reporter.

. . . "The large and varied clinic of the Ophthalmic Hospital, and the work done there by colleagues have contributed very extensively to the present volume. Current literature has also been gleaned, and the labors of others outside utilized to a certain extent. The book is a solid contribution to homœopathy, and will, unquestionably be bought up eagerly."—From U. S. Med. Investigator.

. . . "This work contrasts favorably with many similar treatises. It has not been written by inexperienced practitioners, but of men who write of that which they have seen—of that which they have accomplished. . . . It is, in short, a useful book, and as such we commend it to the study of our readers."—From the Monthly Hom. Review.

ANGELL, DR. H. C. A treatise on Diseases of the Eye; for the Use of Students and Practitioners. By Henry C. Angell, M.D., Professor of Ophthalmology in the Boston University School of Medicine, etc., etc. Fifth edition, enlarged and illustrated. Pp. 343. 12mo., Cloth, ... 3 00

The fifth edition of this standard work has just been issued from the press, and shows that the whole work has been thoroughly revised and brought up to the latest dates in ophthalmology. Exquisite clear photographic illustrations have been added, and an exposition given of the dioptric or metric system, as applied to lenses for spectacles.

Eserin is introduced as a topical application in many forms of diseases of the eye; Hydrochlorate of Gelsemium as a substitute for Atropin as a dilator of the pupil; the operation for drainage of the eye, etc., etc.

The fourth edition of Dr. Angell's work has lately been translated into French, and very favorably reviewed by the German and English homœopathic press.

—— How to Take Care of our Eyes, with Advice to Parents and Teachers in regard to the Management of the Eyes of Children. By Henry C. Angell, M.D., Professor of Ophthalmology in Boston University, author of Treatise on Disease of the Eye for the use of Students and General Practitioners, etc. Boston, 1878. Pp. 71, 16mo. Cloth, ... 50

This most admirable popular treatise has appeared, for the most part, already in the Atlantic Monthly, and should be recommended by physicians to all their families, as it contains practical advice needed by all.

We glean from the author's preface: "Though not the first work of the kind published, this is believed to be simpler, freer from technical terms, and shorter than its predecessors. These merits, it is hoped, may render it exceptionably popular, and therefore exceptionably useful.

"The growing prevalence of weak sight in this country, both in children and adults, would seem to make a wider knowledge of the eye, and how to take care of it, of some importance."

In the preparation of the Annual Record, Professor Raue has been assisted by an able corps of collaborators, and no labor or expense has been spared to have the whole a complete digest of all the valuable information scattered throughout the periodical literature of Homœopathy during the year 1869. The journals of the United States, England, Germany, France, Spain, and other countries, have furnished materials for this great work.

"It is a year-book, containing everything that appeared of importance in the whole field of literature, an account of the many beneficial results due to our rapidly spreading school. . . . Such a book is also greatly wanted in Germany. We find that the editor has extracted also the German journals with the greatest conscientiousness. . . . It contains a mass of important material well worthy of our notice."—From Allgemeine Homœopathische Zeitung.

BAEHR, DR. B. The Science of Therapeutics according to the Principles of Homœopathy. Translated and enriched with numerous additions from Kafka and other sources, by C. J. HEMPEL, M.D. Two volumes. 1387 pages, ... 9 00

This work is to take the place of the late Hartmann's Acute and Chronic Diseases, but in point of scientific value and practical usefulness it is far superior to the former. Dr. Hempel has incorporated large sections from Kafka in the same, has also on suitable occasions introduced the new remedies, and has made valuable additions from our journals and personal records.

. . . "In short Dr. Baehr has presented us with the results of his observations at the bedside rather than of his researches in the study. It is this which renders his work valuable, and which at the same time accounts for his occasional imperfections. We know of no work of the kind in homœopathic literature where the suggestions for the choice of medicines are given in a fresher or clearer manner, or in one better calculated to interest and inform the practitioner.

"Throughout the whole of these two volumes his instructions as to the diet and the management of patients are generally good.

"For the physician who is engaged in a clinical investigation of homœopathy, it would be difficult to select a guide more suitable or more trustworthy.

"We have only to add that the two volumes are highly creditable to the publishers. The type is good, the paper good, and the binding excellent."—From the Monthly Homœopathic Review.

"In addition to the contents of the original German edition of Baehr, the American reader has given him indications for the use of the 'New Remedies' on all suitable occasions; the able and industrious translator, Prof. Hempel, having furnished these, in addition to many valuable hints from his own experience, and extracts from the writings of Kafka and from our Medical Journals, thus presenting the most modern as well as most approved remedies, and making the book complete.

"The publishers, Messrs. Boericke & Tafel, deserve the encomiums of the profession, as well as their patronage, for presenting so valuable a book, with all the accessories of excellent paper, unexceptionable typography, and appropriate and substantial binding."—From the Hahnemannian Monthly.

"At last we have a practice of physic worthy of the homœopathic school. Dr. Baehr has all the qualifications required for describing disease, in addition to a large knowledge, bibliographical and experimental, of its homœopathic treatment. He is thus enabled to present both sides of his subject in sufficient fulness and in due proportion. The book is complete in itself, and makes little demand upon previous or even collateral knowledge. Symptomatology, diagnosis, prognosis and morbid anatomy receive due attention in respect of every form of disease.

"The descriptions of disease—no easy thing to write—are always clear and full, sometimes felicitous. The style is easy and readable, and not too prolix. Above all, the relations of maladies to medicines are studied no less philosophically than experimentally, with an avoidance of abstract theorizing on the one side, and of mere empiricism on the other, which is most satisfactory."—From the British Journal of Homœopathy.

"This work is unmistakably the production of a practical man. It is short, pithy, and contains a vast deal of sound practical instruction. The diseases are briefly described; the directions for treatment are succinct and summary. It is a book which might with profit be consulted by all practitioners of homœopathy."—From the North American Journal.

. . . "Here, then, we have a work which will enable the homœopathic practitioner to select the remedy in a case of fever, according to the individuality of that case, with the least amount of labor, and with the greatest possible accuracy. It is a companion volume to Bell's work on Diarrhœa, etc., and is much more accurate, and more nearly complete than is that excellent and valuable little volume.

"The translator has done his work well, giving us a pure English, and his careful proof reading has added to the value of the work. The publishers have spared no expense to bring this book out in a handsome style; while the printers have made an uncommonly neat job of their part of the work; in fact, translator, publishers and printer have conspired to bring out a useful book in handsome style, and have happily succeeded in doing so."—From the Hahnemannian Monthly.

BUCHNER, J. Morbus Brightii. Translated by S. LILIENTHAL, M.D. 148 pages, ... 1 00

"Our indefatigable friend in Gotham has laid the profession under additional obligation by de-Teutonizing Dr. Buchner's excellent monograph on Bright's Disease. Under the different heads of the History of the Disease, its Frequency, Duration, Hereditary Tendencies, Pathological Anatomy, Character, Etiology, Statistics, Diagnosis, Symptoms and Course, Prognosis, Prophylaxis, and Therapia, there are gathered very many interesting facts and suggestions. Indeed, this is just such a compendious and exhaustive treatise on a most practical subject, as we might expect from its distinguished author. Its general value is enhanced by an Appendix, furnished by Dr. Lilienthal, which gives the indications for the newer remedies in Bright's Disease.—From U. S. Med. and Surg. Journal.

BURT, DR. W. H. Characteristic Materia Medica. Second edition. 541 pages, ... 2 50

In this work, the author gives the characteristic symptoms of two hundred and three remedies.

We quote from the author's preface:

"The following work is neither a 'text-book,' nor an 'epitome,' much less is it offered as a substitute for the Materia Medica, but from all sources within my reach, including pretty much the entire range of our English and American Homœopathic literature, I have endeavored to collect those symptoms which, whether originally pathogenetic or clinical only, have come to be regarded as 'characteristics,' and as 'key-notes,' by reason of their own prominence, or from the frequency of their mention by the best authorities.

BURT, DR. W. H. Therapeutics of Tuberculosis or Pulmonary Consumption. 230 pages, ... 1 75

"This book is precisely what its title implies, a work on the Therapeutics of Consumption. The author divides tuberculosis into twelve of its characteristic symptoms, and then takes up each head separately, giving the indications for the remedies." (Then follows a description of the arrangement.)

"The plan of the work, as stated above, has been most thoroughly carried out. The indications for the remedies are given in a most excellent and concise manner, and in connection with them many eminent authorities are quoted, among whom may be mentioned Hirschel, Meyhoffer, Hughes, Baehr, Goullon, Guernsey, Dunham, and others. The chapter on Cough deserves special mention. Hygienic and dietetic rules are also given. The book closes with a chapter on the use of the spirometer as a means of diagnosis."—From the New England Medical Gazette.

"This volume has several merits; it is not too large; it gives the characteristic and clinical indications side by side, so that they are easily found; it leaves the question of dose, and the repetition, to the good sense and experience of the practitioner; it does not set forth any fraudulent claims for this or that 'specific,' and what is indispensable in a work on this fatal malady, it adds a list of valuable and merciful expedients to make the poor victim as comfortable as possible. It is very appropriately dedicated to Dr. Meyhoffer, of Nice, R. L."—From the U. S. Medical Investigator.

BUTLER, JOHN. A Text-Book of Electro-Therapeutics and Electro-Surgery, for the Use of Students and General Practitioners. By John Butler, M.D., L.R.C.P.E., L.R.C.S.I., etc., etc. Pp. 277, 8vo. Cloth, ... 2 00

"Among the many works extant on Medical Electricity; we have seen nothing that comes so near 'filling the bill' as this. The book is less than three hundred pages octavo, but is sufficiently comprehensive for the student or the practitioner. The fact that it is written by an enthusiastic and very intelligent homœopathist, gives to it additional value. It places electricity on the same basis as other drugs, and points out by specific symptoms when the agent is indicated. The use of electricity is therefore clearly no longer an exception to the law of similia, but acts curatively, only when used in accordance with that law. We are not left to conjecture and doubt, but can clearly see the specific indications of the agent, in the disease we have under observation. The author has done the profession an invaluable service in thus making plain the pathogenesis of this wonderful agent. The reader will find no difficulty in following both the pathology and treatment of the cases described. Electritricity is not held up as the cure-all of disease, but is shown to be one of the most important and valuable of remediable agents, when used in an intelligent manner. We have seen no work which we can so heartily recommend as this."—From the Cincinnati Medical Advance.

"Butler's work gives with exceptional thoroughness all details of the latest researches on Electricity, which powerful agent has a great future, and rightly demands our most earnest consideration. But Homœopathia especially must hail with delight the advent from out the ranks of her apostles of a writer of John Butler's ability. His book will also find a large circle of non-homœopathic readers, since it does not conflict with the tenets of any therapeutic sect, and particular care has been bestowed on the technical part of electro-therapeia."—From the Homœopathische Rundschau.

DAKE, DR. WM. C. Pathology and Treatment of Diphtheria. By Wm. C. Dake, M.D., of Nashville, Tenn. Pp. 55, 8vo. Paper, ... 50

This interesting monograph was enlarged from a paper read at the Third Annual Meeting of the Homœopathic Society of Tennessee, held at Memphis, September 19, 1877.

It gives a report of one hundred and seventy-six cases treated during a period of eleven months. It well repays a careful perusal.

EGGERT, DR. W. The Homœopathic Therapeutics of Uterine and Vaginal Discharges. Pp. 543, 8vo. Half morocco, ... 3 50

The author brought here together in an admirable and comprehensive arrangement everything published to date on the subject in the whole homœopathic literature, besides embodying his own abundant personal experience. The contents divided into eight parts, are arranged as follows:

PART I. Treats on Menstruation and Dysmenorrhœa; PART II Menorrhagia; PART III. Amenorrhœa; PART IV. Abortion and Miscarriage; PART V. Metrorrhagia; PART VI. Fluor albus; PART VII. Lochia; and PART VIII. General Concomitants. No work as complete as this, on the subject, was ever before attempted, and we feel assured that it will meet with great favor by the profession.

Some time ago inquiry was made through the columns of the "Observer" for an article on Leucorrhœa; to such I would say, we now have such a one before the profession, only in a more complete and available form than an article could have. We not only have a work an Leucorrhœa, but on all uterine and vaginal discharges, together with their varied and numerous concomitants.

A special beauty of the work is, that all verified remedies stand out in small capitals, and are thus more easily recognized. This to the student often calls to mind times past, where hours were spent in the search for a remedy that can now be found in as many minutes.

The book is a counterpart of Bell on Diarrrhœa, and Dunham on Whooping-cough. Synthetics, Diagnosis and Pathology are left out as not coming within the scope of the work. The author in his preface says: remedies and their symptoms are left out, and the symptoms and their remedies have received sole attention—that is what the busy practitioner wants.

"A most exhaustive treatise, admirably arranged, covering all that is known of therapeutics in this important department."—From the Homœopathic Times.

FAULKNER'S PHYSICIANS' VISITING LIST. . . . 2 00

As the time draws near when most physician's renew their visiting lists, we would again point out to the profession the above admirably arranged list. The Repertory, the most complete of its size ever issued, is alone worth the price. It is an invaluable remembrancer, and has been brought up to date in this its second edition, as all the new American remedies have been carefully incorporated. By an ingenious contrivance, doing away with the india-rubber strings, extra sheets, for reports of cases, can readily be inserted, as well as extra sheets of the list proper for those having more than forty patients a day.

The whole is elegantly gotten up, bound in fine morocco leather and gilt-edged. It is acknowledged to be the cheapest list in the market for the price.

"Dr. Faulkner's Visiting List is well adapted to render the details of daily work more perfectly recorded than any book prepared for the same purpose with which we have hitherto met.

"It commences with the almanacs; then follow an obstetric calendar: a list of poisons and their antidotes; an account of Marshall Hall's ready method in asphyxia; a repertory of between sixty and seventy pages; pages marked for general memoranda; vaccination records; records of deaths; nurses; friends, and others; obstetric record, which is especially complete; and finally, pages ruled to keep notes of daily visits; and also spaces marked for name of the medicine ordered on each day. The plan devised is so simple, so efficient, and so clear, that we illustrate it on a scale just half the size of the original."

"The List is not divided into special months, but its use may be as easily commenced in the middle of the year as at the beginning.

"We heartily recommend Faulkner's List to our colleagues."—From the Monthly Homœopathic Review.

GOULLON, DR. H. Scrofulous affections, and the Advantages of their Treatment according to the Principles and Experiences of Homœopathy. Described and demonstrated by numerous examples of successful cures. Translated from the German by Emil Tietze, M.D. 355 pages. Cloth, 8vo., . . . 1 50

"It would be as difficult to define the scrofulous cachexia, as it would be to draw a good plate illustrating the nervous system, or to devise a pocket case that should contain the very remedies that a doctor needs and no more. The first chapter in this book contains brief notices of the numerous attempts that have been made in this direction. It is concise, suggestive, and very entertaining. The consideration of the Discrasiæ that are related to scrofula, id est tuberculosis syphilis, sycosis, and rachitis, abounds in clinical hints and deductions of the most practical kind.

"This is followed by a study of the Special Forms of Scrofula, as it affects the cutaneous system, the muco-membraneous system, the glandular system, and the joints and bones. The remaining one hundred and fifty pages are devoted to a practical discussion of each and all the various remedies in ordinary use, for this disease, both in the simple and compound forms. This part of the book is largely clinical, 133 cases being reported thereon. We have no space for extracts. It must suffice to commend the volume as the most practical of its kind extant, and to express our thanks to Dr. Tietze for putting it in an English dress."—From the U. S. M. and S. Journal.

"We return our thanks to the translator, Dr. Tietze, and to the publishers, for making this work accessible to the English reading profession. The translator has done his share of the work well, and the publishers have given us fine white paper, clear type, and neat binding. Goullon on Scrofulosis is the companion volume to Lord on Intermittent Fever. Of such books we cannot have too many, provided they are written by men of practical mind and large experience."—From Hahnemannian Monthly.

GRAY and HEMPEL. Homœopathic Examiner. Two vols. Bound, ... 5 00

GROSS, DR. H. Comparative Materia Medica. Edited by C. Hering, M.D. 520 pages, ... 8 00

The author's Introduction is followed by a concise Pharmaceutical Key, added by the editor, to all the remedies mentioned in the work; then follow several pages of editor's practical advice and remarks; this is followed by 464 pages of comparisons, and the whole concludes with an appendix containing the collateral symptoms: during stool, during urination, during menstruation, and during cough.

The whole work is admirably arranged. The comparison of any two remedies, either occupies one double-column page, or two opposite pages. Thus the whole is taken in at a glance, without the necessity of turning a leaf.

The remedies are arranged alphabetically, so that in the left-hand column will be found the remedy to be compared, and in the right-hand column the remedies it is compared with, also in alphabetical order. The whole is enriched by numerous marginal annotations and remarks by the illustrious editor.

The work is brought out regardless of expense, on heavy tinted paper, clear print, and substantial binding in half morocco.

GUERNSEY, DR. H. N. The Application of the Principles and Practice of Homœopathy to Obstetrics and the Disorders Peculiar to Women and Young Children. By Henry N. Guernsey, M.D., Professor of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children in the Homœopathic Medical College of Pennsylvania, etc., etc. With numerous Illustrations. Third edition, revised, enlarged and greatly improved. Pp. 1004. 8vo., half morocco, ... 8 00

This standard work, with the numerous improvements and additions is the most complete and comprehensible work on the subject in the English language. Of the previous editions almost four thousand copies are in the hands of the profession, and of this third edition a goodly number have already been taken up. There are few other professional works that can boast of a like popularity, and with all new improvements and experiences diligently collected and faithfully incorporated into each successive edition, this favorite work will retain its hold on the high esteem it is held in by the profession, for years to come. It is superfluous to add that it was and is used from its first appearance as a text-book at the homœopathic colleges.

GUERNSEY, DR. W. E. The Traveller's Medical Repertory and Family Adviser for the Homœopathic Treatment of Acute Diseases. 36 pages, ... 30

This little work has been arranged with a view to represent in as compact a manner as possible all the diseases—or, rather, disorders—which the non-professional would attempt to prescribe for, it being intended only for the treatment of simple or acute diseases, or to allay the suffering in maladies of a more serious nature until a Homœopathic practitioner can be summoned.

HAHNEMANN, DR. S. The Lesser Writings of. Collected and Translated by R. E. Dudgeon, M.D. With a Preface and Notes by E. E. MARCY, M.D. With a Steel Engraving of Hahnemann from the statue of Steinhauser. 784 pages, . . 3 00

This valuable work contains a large number of Essays, of great interest to laymen as well as medical men upon Diet, the Prevention of Diseases, Ventilation of Dwellings, etc. As many of these papers were written before the discovery of the homœopathic theory of cure, the reader will be enabled to peruse in this volume the ideas of a gigantic intellect when directed to subjects of general and practical interest.

"We cannot too strongly recommend this volume to the study of every homœopath. He will find in it the germ of many a thought which has since been expanded into a pamphlet or treatise, and formed the capital of many an aspiring lesser light, and while it enlarges his own horizon, it will at the same time give him a truer, grander conception of the reach of that noble mind to which the world is indebted for the only valuable discovery in therapeutics that was ever made."—From the North American Journal of Homœopathy.

HAHNEMANN, DR. S. Organon of the Art of Healing. By Samuel Hahnemann. Aude Sapere. Fifth American Edition translated from the Fifth German Edition, by C. Wesselhœft, M.D. pp. 244, 8vo. Cloth, ... 1 75

This fifth edition of "Hahnemann's Organon" has a history. So many complaints were made again and again of the incorrectness and cumbersome style of former and existing editions to the publishers, that, yielding to the pressure, they promised to destroy the plates of the fourth edition, and to bring out an entire retranslation in 1876, the Centennial year. After due consideration, and on the warm recommendation of Dr. Constantine Hering and others, the task of making this re-translation was confided to Dr. C. Wesselhœft, and the result of years of labor is now before the profession, who will be best able themselves to judge how well he succeeded in acquitting himself of the difficult task.

"To insure a correct rendition of the text of the author, they (the publishers) selected as his translator Dr. Conrad Wesselhoeft, of Boston, an educated physician in every respect, and from his youth up perfectly familiar with the English and German languages, than whom no better selection could have been made." "That he has made, as he himself declares, 'an entirely new and independent translation of the whole work,' a careful comparison of the various paragraphs, notes, etc., with those contained in previous editions, gives abundant evidence; and while he has, so far as was possible, adhered strictly to the letter of Hahnemann's text, he has at the same time given a pleasantly flowing rendition that avoids the harshness of a strictly literal translation."—From the Hahnemannian Monthly.

"The present translator, while endeavoring to produce a perfectly correct translation of the original, has avoided too close an adherence to Hahnemann's construction, style and punctuation. Dr. W. has aimed to give an entirely new and independent translation, and with deep reverence for the author and loyalty to the truth, he has accomplished his task."—From the American Observer.

"To every homœopathic physician the work is of course a necessity. The younger members of the profession will undoubtedly make the Organon one of the first contributions to their medical library."—From the Homœopathic Times.

HALE, DR. E. M. Lectures on Diseases of the Heart. In Three Parts. Part I: Functional Disorders of the Heart. Part II: Inflammatory Affections of the Heart. Part III: Organic Diseases of the Heart. Second enlarged edition. 248 pages, . . 1 75

HALE, DR. E. M. Materia Medica and Special Therapeutics of the New Remedies. Fourth edition, revised and enlarged. In two volumes,

Vol. I. Special Symptomatology. With new Botanical and Pharmacological Notes. 672 pages, . . $5 00

Vol. II. Special Therapeutics. With Illustrative Clinical Cases. 819 pages, ... - 5 00

"Dr. Hale's work on New Remedies, is one both well known and much appreciated on this side of the Atlantic. For many medicines of considerable value we are indebted to his researches. In the present edition, the symptoms produced by the drug investigated, and those which they have been observed to cure, are separated from the clinical observations, by which the former have been confirmed. That this volume contains a very large amount of invaluable information is incontestable, and that every effort has been made to secure both fullness of detail and accuracy of statement, is apparent throughout. For these reasons we can confidently commend Dr. Hale's fourth edition of his well-known work on the New Remedies to our homœopathic colleagues."—From The Monthly Homœopathic Review.

"We do not hesitate to say that by these publications Dr. Hale rendered an inestimable service to homœopathy, and thereby to the art of medicine. 'The school of Hahnemann in every country owes him hearty thanks for all this; and allopathy is beginning to share our gain.' The author is given credit for having in this fourth edition corrected the mistake for which the third one had been taxed rather severely, by restoring in Vol. II the 'special therapeutics,' instead of the 'characteristics' of the third edition."—From the British Journal of Homœopathy.

—— The Medical, Surgical and Hygienic Treatment of Diseases of Women, especially those causing Sterility, the Disorders and Accidents of Pregnancy, and Painful and Difficult Labor. By Edwin M. Hale, M.D., Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics in the Chicago Homœopathic College, etc., etc. Pp. 298, 8vo. Cloth, ... 2 25

From the author's preface:

This work is divided into two parts, of which Part I treats of Sterility, and Part II of Disorders of Pregnancy and Dystocia. The contents of the fourteen chapters of Part I are as follows: Enumeration of the Causes of Sterility; Statistics of Sterility; Constitutional Causes and their Treatment; Psychical Causes; Ovarian Causes; Uterine Causes; Vaginal Causes; Renal Causes; Vesical Causes; Urethral Causes; Rectal Causes; The Mechanism of Conception; Hygienic and other Errors Causing Sterility; General Therapeutics of Sterility.

The four chapters comprised in Part II treat on: Remedies for General Disorders of Pregnancy; Preventive Treatment of Dystocia; Special Disorders and Accidents of Pregnancy; Medication of Fœtus in Utero as a Means of Preventing Dystocia; the immediate treatment of Functional Dystocia.

This work fills a void in Homœopathic literature, and is very favorably received by the profession.

"This new work calls for a passing notice. It embodies the observations and experience of the author during twenty-five years of active and extensive practice, and is designed to supplement rather than supersede kindred works.

The arrangement of the subjects treated is methodical and convenient; the introduction containing an article inserted by permission of Dr. Jackson, of Chicago, the author upon the ovular and ovulation theory of menstruation, which contains all the observations of practical importance known on this subject to date.

The diseases causing sterility are fully described, and the medical, surgical and hygienic treatment pointed out. The more generally employed medicines are enumerated, but their special or specific indications are unfortunately omitted.

The general practitioner will find a great many valuable things for his daily rounds, and cannot afford to do without the book. The great reputation and ability of the author are sufficient to recommend the work, and to guarantee an appreciative reception and large sale."—From the Hahnemannian Monthly.

HART, DR. C. P. Repertory to the New Remedies, based upon and designed to accompany Hale's Special Symptomatology and Therapeutics. Pp. 199, 8vo. Cloth, . .$ 1 25

"This work will be found of great value, convenient in arrangement, and as near perfect as any should expect."—American Homœopathic Observer.

"The thanks of the profession are due to Dr. Hart and his co-laborers, for this valuable contribution to our literature. We are sure that, with the aid thus afforded, the New Remedies will be more frequently used than has been heretofore the case, and our patients will reap the benefit."—N. A. Journal of Homœopathy.

"We feel under obligations to Dr. Hart for his valuable work, and especially so on account of the intelligent manner in which he has prepared it. Every one who has Hale's work will find the Repertory indispensable."—Hahnemannian Monthly.

Taking Cold (The Cause of half our Diseases): its Nature, Causes, Prevention and Cure; its frequency as a Cause of other Disease, and the Diseases of which it is the Cause, with their Diagnosis and Treatment. Fifth edition, enlarged and improved. London, 1875. Pp. 188, 18mo. Cloth, ... 50

From the Author's Preface: "This Essay was originally published under the conviction that, by attention to the directions it contains, persons may not only very frequently avoid taking cold, but may themselves frequently cure a cold at the onset, and thereby prevent the development of many of those serious diseases that would otherwise follow. The favorable reception it has met with is a sufficient testimony that it has been found useful."

—— A System of Surgery. Illustrated with 568 Engravings on Wood By Wm. Tod Helmuth, M.D. Third Edition. Pp. 1000. Sheep, ... 8 50

This third edition of Dr. Helmuth's great work is already in appearance a great improvement over the old edition, it being well printed on fine paper, and well bound.

By increasing the size of the page, decreasing the size of types, and setting up solid, fully one-half more printed matter is given than in the previous edition, albeit there are over 200 pages less. And while the old edition, bound in sheep, was sold at $11.50 by its publishers, this improved third edition is now furnished at $3 less, or for $8.50.

The author brought the work fully up to date, and for an enumeration of some of the more important improvements, we cannot do better than to refer to Dr. Helmuth's own Preface.

The first volume, containing the symptomatology, gives the complete pathogenesis of two hundred and eighty-seven remedies, besides a large number of new remedies are added by Dr. Hempel, in the appendix. The second volume contains an admirably arranged Repertory. Each chapter is accompanied by copious clinical remarks and the concomitant symptoms of the chief remedies for the malady treated of, thus imparting a mass of information, rendering the work indispensable to every student and practitioner of medicine.

vations regarding the truly reliable and practically verified curative indications in actual cases of disease. Translated, with notes and new remedies, by C. J. HEMPEL, M.D. 546 pages, ... 3 00

"With this characteristically long title, the veteran and indefatigable Jahr gives us another volume of homœopathics. Besides the explanation of its purport contained in the title itself, the author's preface still further sets forth its distinctive aim. It is intended, he says, as a "guide to beginners, where I only indicate the most important and decisive points for the selection of a remedy, and where I do not offer anything but what my own individual experience, during a practice of forty years, has enabled me to verify as absolutely decisive in choosing the proper remedy.' The reader will easily comprehend that, in carrying out this plan, I had rigidly to exclude all cases concerning which I had no experience of my own to offer. . . . . We are bound to say that the book itself is agreeable, chatty, and full of practical observation. It may be read straight through with interest, and referred to in the treatment of particular cases with advantage."—From the British Journal of Homœopathy.

—— Clinical Guide, or Pocket Repertory for the Treatment of Acute and Chronic Diseases. Translated by C. J. HEMPEL, M.D. Second American, revised and enlarged, edition. From the third German edition, enriched by the addition of the New Remedies. By S. LILIENTHAL, M.D. 624 pages, ... 2 50

"It opens with an 'Introduction' and a systematic table of the various articles contained in alphabetical order; then follows the Clinical Guide for the treatment of acute and chronic diseases, these being arranged in alphabetical order, commencing with "Abscesses," and ending with "Zona." The characteristic symptoms of the most important remedies referred to are then given, and the whole is concluded with a copious index.

"To those of our readers who have used the old edition, nothing need be said to induce them to procure a copy of the new. To others, however, we feel free to state that as a volume of ready reference to lie on the office desk, or be used at the bedside, it is very valuable, and will save many tedious and distracting hunts through the symptomen codex."

The typographical execution of the book is excellent.—From the Hahnemannian Monthly.

—— The Homœopathic Treatment of Diseases of Females and Infants at the Breast. Translated from the French by C. J. HEMPEL, M.D. 422 pages, ... 2 00

This work deserves the most careful attention on the part of Homœopathic practitioners. No one can fail to study this work but with profit and pleasure.

—— The Venereal Diseases, their Pathological Nature, correct Diagnosis, and Homœopathic Treatment. Prepared in accordance with the Author's own, as well as with the experience of other Physicians, and accompanied with critical discussions.

Translated, with numerous and important additions, from the works of other authors, and from his own experience. By C. J. HEMPEL, M.D. 428 pages. $3 00

This is the most elaborate treatise on the subject in print. LAURIE AND McCLATCHEY. The Homœopathic Domestic Medicine. By JOSEPH LAURIE, M.D. Ninth American, from the twenty-first English edition. Edited and revised, with numerous important additions, and the introduction of the new remedies. By R. J. McCLATCHEY, M.D. 1044 pages, . . 5 00

"We do not hesitate to indorse the claims made by the publishers, that this is the most complete, clear and comprehensive treatise on the domestic homœopathic treatment of diseases extant.

"This handsome volume of nearly eleven hundred pages is divided into six parts:

"Part one is introductory, and is almost faultless. It gives the most complete and exact directions for the maintenance of health, and of the method of investigating the condition of the sick, and of discriminating between different diseases. It is written in the most lucid style, and is above all things wonderfully free from technicalities.

"Part two treats of symptoms, character, distinctions and treatment of general diseases, together with a chapter on casualties.

"Part three takes up diseases peculiar to women.

"Part four is devoted to the disorders of infancy and childhood.

"Part five gives the characteristic symptoms of the medicines referred to in the body of the work, while

"Part six introduces the repertory."—Hahn. Monthly.

"Of the usefulness of this work in cases where no educated homœopathic physician is within reach, there can be no question.

"There is no doubt that domestic homœopathy has done much to make the science known; it has also saved lives in emergencies. That practice has never been so well presented to the public as in this excellent volume."—New Eng. Med. Gazette.

Second edition now running through the press. . 5 00

"Certainly no one in our ranks is so well qualified for this work as he who has done it, and in considering the work done, we must have a true conception of the proper sphere of such a work.

"For the fresh graduate, this book will be invaluable, and to all such we unhesitatingly and very earnestly commend it. To the older one, who says he has no use for this book, we have nothing to say. He is a good one to avoid when well, and to dread when ill. We also hope that he is severely an unicum."—Prof. Sam. A. Jones in American Homœopathist.

". . . . . It is an extraordinary useful book, and those who add it to their library will never feel regret, for we are not saying too much in pronouncing it the best work on therapeutics in homœopathic (or any other) literature. With this under one elbow, and Hering's or Allen's Materia Medica under the other, the careful homœopathic practitioner can refute Niemayer's too confident assertion, 'I declare it idle to hope for a time when a medical prescription should be the simple resultant of known quantities.'

"Doctor, by all means buy Lilienthal's Homœopathic Therapeutics. It contains a mine of wealth." Prof. Chas. Gatchel in Ibid.

PROF. S. LILIENTHAL, M.D.

"DEAR SIR: It is so seldom that a really excellent book appears in the homœopathic market, that I feel it a duty to greet book and author, when such a rarity as your 'Therapeutics' makes its appearance. The more I peruse its pages, the more satisfied I feel with it. I shall recommend it to the students as a rich and trustworthy treasury, from which they can memorize 'Materia Medica hints' to their great advantage. It will give them a wonderful impetus in their life-work, the mastery of our voluminous Materia Medica."

Very truly yours, E. A. FARRINGTON, Philada.

"Chapter XV is devoted to the Materia Medica, and constitutes a very valuable portion of the work. The characteristic indications for the several remedies are here so carefully given as to enable the amateur even to prescribe with accuracy and success.

"The book is well illustrated, handsomely printed, and strongly bound in half morocco, making a volume which does great credit to the publisher, and which may be honestly recommended by the profession."—American Journal of Hom. Mat. Med.

"The work is, without doubt, the best of its kind we possess. We refer with much pleasure to the Materia Medica part, and the indications for the remedies and the directions for their use."—U. S. Medical Investigator.

"In order to rightly estimate the value and comprehensiveness of this great work, the reader should compare it, as we have done, with the best of those already before the public. In size, fullness, and practical value, it is head and shoulders above the very best of them, while in many most important disorders, it is far superior to them altogether, containing, as it does, recent forms of disease of which they make no mention."—Hahnemannian Monthly.

"To say that this is the most comely and creditable book that Boericke & Tafel have ever published, is to tell but half the truth. In its specialty its contents are invaluable. Of our own knowledge it has already done good service. As adapted to the treatment of horses especially . . . it is nearly perfect.—*John Rogers, V. S., in U. S. PHYSICIAN'S VISITING LIST AND POCKET REPERTORY, THE HOMŒOPATHIC. By Robert Faulkner, M.D. Second Edition.

"Dr. Faulkner's Visiting List is well adapted to render the details of daily work more perfectly recorded than any book prepared for the same purpose with which we have hitherto met.

"It commences with almanacs for 1877 and 1878; then follow an obstetric calendar; a list of Poisons and their Antidotes; an account of Marshall Hall's ready method in Asphyxia; a Repertory of between sixty and seventy pages; pages marked for general memoranda; Vaccination Records; Record of Deaths; Nurses; Friends and others; Obstetric Record, which is especially complete; and finally pages ruled to keep notes of daily visits; and also spaces marked for name of the medicine ordered on each day. The plan devised is so simple, so efficient, and so clear, that we illustrate it on a scale just half the size of the original (here follows illustration).

"The list is not divided into special months, but its use may be as easily commenced in the middle of the year as at the beginning.

"We heartily recommend Faulkner's list to our colleagues, who may be now making preparations for the duties of 1878.—From the Monthly Homœopathic Review (London).

"Dr. Faulkner is evidently a practical man; he has devised a Visiting List, and for busy Homœopathic practitioners he has added to it a concise Repertory. We like the idea. The type is clear and readable, so that the busy practitioner can refer to his repertory either in the padded chamber of his brougham, or in the doubtful comfort of his railway car.

"We trust Dr. Faulkner will find numerous admirers of his elegant little pocket-book, for we feel sure that he has supplied Homœopathists with the very thing they wanted. Could he have done more?"—From the Homœopathic World (London).

In addition to the electric treatment, the Doctor enumerates, with each disease, what homœopathic remedies he found most beneficial in conjunction with electricity, giving in most cases concise indications to guide in their selection.

Few remedies in the Materia Medica enjoy a higher and more deserved reputation for usefulness than that which is the subject of this monograph, or have received more consideration from writers eminent in medicine, of every age and school. The essay of Dr. Reil, containing the most recent facts and experience in relation to the subject, and completely exhausting, as it does, everything of interest connected with it, may be justly regarded as the most thorough and complete treatise upon Aconite ever yet presented.

It is morbid anatomy in its densest and most compact form, scarcely ever alleviated by cases, histories, or hypotheses; it is just such a work as might be expected from its author, who is said to have written in it the results of his experience gained in the careful examination of over 12,000 bodies, and who is possessed of a truly marvellous power of observing and amassing facts.

FROM DISTINGUISHED PHYSICIANS.

To the Publishers.

"The information which it contains cannot fail to be of the highest benefit to those who have the care of children. The author evinces a thorough knowledge of the subject, and his suggestions and advice are both intelligent and practical."—F. W. Dowling, M.D., New York.

"There is a freshness, a terseness, and vigor about it which I have never before seen in any work of this kind. It is a book fully up with the times, written by an original thinker and careful observer, which, while it must diffuse an immense amount of correct information to the public, could at the same time be perused by physicians with advantage."—F. T. Talbot, M.D., Boston, Mass.

"No one needs instruction more than a young mother, and the directions given by Dr. Verdi in this work are such as I should take great pleasure in recommending to all the young mothers, and some of the old ones, in the range of my practice."—George E. Shipman, M.D., Chicago, Ill.

To Dr. Verdi.

"I hope it will bring you great joy by its being thoroughly spread, and thus spreading the love of our science amongst that class of mankind to whom it is specially addressed—man's better half."—C. G. Raue, M.D., Philadelphia.

"Allow me to express my thanks to you for the work on 'Maternity.' From a superficial examination of the book, I can speak only in its praise."—D. H. Beckwith, M.D., Cleveland, O.

"A book of this kind was really required by families, and I think there is much in this one of decided benefit to mothers. It is written in a clear and popular style, and will, I doubt not, accomplish all you anticipate from it."—E. Marcy, M.D., New York City.

"We have no hesitation in recommending it to the public."—C. Neidhard, M.D., Philadelphia.

"Dr. Verdi's book is replete with useful suggestions for wives and mothers, and his medical instructions for home use accord with the maxims of my best experience in practice."—John F. Gray, M.D., New York City.

—— Mothers and Daughters: Practical Studies for the Conservation of the Health of Girls. By TULLIO SUZZARA VERDI, A.M., M.D. Pp. 287. 12mo. Cloth. Price, ... 1 50

This is a companion volume to the author's book on "Maternity," and whoever has the care of a young girl needs this book, it being a plain, pointed, discriminating elucidation of the laws of health—a preventive of the ignorance which makes so many American women invalids, or, at least sufferers under special weaknesses and troubles that proper treatment in youth would have avoided altogether.

It is a volume written with all needful plainness, yet with the most fastidious delicacy. No woman with the instincts of a lady need fear to peruse it herself or to read it to her daughter.

It is a work which every physician should advise mothers to buy for their daughters, as it will save their answering innumerable questions and giving specific advice in a great many cases, and will thus ultimately prevent a serious loss of time in daily practice.

"This volume deals with the health problems of young womanhood. It is pure in its tone and delicate in its treatment; its counsels are generally wise; it treats health rather than disease, gives more attention to the conservation of health than to its restoration, which is the specific work of the doctor. It is remarkably free from notions and commends no nostrums. It is a book which is eminently desirable for mothers to read as a preparation for the care of their own daughters, and which the daughters themselves, under wise maternal direction, would do well also to use as a text-book in hygiene." From Harper's New Monthly Magazine for May, 1877.

"The people, and especially the women, need enlightening on many points connected with their physical life, and the time is fast approaching when it will no longer be thought singular or 'Yankeeish' that a woman should be instructed in regard to her sexuality, its organs and their functions. . . . . Dr. Verdi is doing a good work in writing such books, and we trust he will continue in the course he has adopted of educating the mother and daughters.

"The book is handsomely presented. It is printed with good type on fine paper, and is neatly and substantially bound."—From the Hahnemannian Monthly.

Homoeopathic Journals.

THE NORTH AMERICAN JOURNAL OF HOMŒOPATHY. Samuel A. Lilienthal, M.D., Editor. Bœricke & Tafel Publishers. Quarterly. Subscription price, per year, payable in advance, ... $4 00

This is the oldest Homœopathic Journal in this country, being now in its twenty-seventh year. The first volume was published in 1851, under the editorship of C. Hering, M.D., of Philadelphia: E. E. Marcy, M.D., and J. W. Metcalfe, M.D., of New York. In 1856, E. E. Marcy and J. C. Peters, M.D., of New York; Wm. H. Holcombe, M.D., of Waterproof, La., and H. C. Preston, M.D., of Providence, R. I., appear as editors. In 1860, Dr. J. C. Peters, with a corpse of assistant editors, assumed charge; and from 1861 until 1869, the late Dr. F. W. Hunt virtually edited the Journal, although his name did not always appear as such. In 1870, Dr. S. Lilienthal became associated with Dr. Hunt as co-editor, and since 1871 Dr. Samuel A. Lilienthal took sole charge of the Journal.

The Journal had its ups and downs during the long years of its existence, but under the administration of indefatigable Dr. Lilienthal it entered on a career of prosperity such as it never enjoyed before, and it is safe to say, that it never before had as many friends, as valuable original or translated articles, and as large a subscription list.

The Twenty-eighth Volume of this Journal commences in August, 1879. Subscriptions please address to the publication office, as follows,

THE HAHNEMANNIAN MONTHLY. Wm. H. Winslow, Ph.D., M.D., of Pittsburg, Editor. Bœricke & Tafel, Publishers. 768 pages per year. Subscription price, per year, ... 3 00

The new series of this favorite Journal was commenced January 1st, 1879, under the editorial management of a gentleman of broad culture and high ability. It has been issued promptly on the first of every month, and will appear as regularly hereafter.

The Journal compares very favorably with previous volumes and is literally crowded with a vast amount of information of great value to the physician. The journal contains no personalities and gives well-digested scholarly articles upon every subject connected with medicine and surgery of practical use in the campaign against disease; editorial notes on every subject of interest to our school; independent reviews of all new books, so that all may know what they are and whether they are worth buying, and gleanings from Homœopathic, Allopathic, and scientific treatises, journals and works, giving a complete and nearly perfect picture of the progress of our science and art throughout the world.

Its matter is skillfully selected, and the practitioner cannot do without it, if he would keep well up in his knowledge and practice.

So rapidly has the new Hahnemannian regained its wonted favor and so great has been the rally to its support by writers and subscribers that it bids fair, early to outstrip all its competitors.

Intending subscribers will please forward their names without delay as our back numbers are dwindling rapidly. Price per year $3.00. Address Publishing Office:
